SERVICE LEARNING SPRING 2015 COURSES

Service Learning is a kind of experiential education that connects classroom learning with community service. In collaboration with community organizations, students learn about and apply tools of the academic discipline and specific course concepts in their service experiences. This combination enhances academic learning and civic awareness while also providing a meaningful service to and with the community. Course credit and grading are for the learning not for the service. The service activities for the course are similar to the readings, lectures, class discussions and other assignments – all are contexts for student learning. Courses will appear with the following notation in the right-hand column of the schedule of classes: SerL or SerL Option.

SerL = all students in the course are required to participate in service learning.

SerL Option = students have a choice to participate in service learning as a final project and/or in lieu of another comparable project.

JESUIT UNIVERSITIES HUMANITARIAN ACTION NETWORK (JUHAN) SPRING 2015 COURSES

The Jesuit Universities Humanitarian Action Network (JUHAN) was created to make sophistication in humanitarian response a hallmark of Jesuit undergraduate education. Grounded in the Jesuit tradition of developing “men and women for others,” JUHAN seeks to advance both undergraduate humanitarian education by bringing students into the professional field at an early stage in their education as well as by providing students who are not pursuing humanitarian action careers with the knowledge and skills needed to fulfill their responsibilities as engaged citizens.

JUHAN focus on developing an educational program that places emphasis on the ethical dimensions of humanitarian action while leveraging the centuries-old Jesuit commitment to education globally to reach across institutional, national and international boundaries and provide students and faculty with a wide range of resources and opportunities. JUHAN also provides an opportunity for faculty, students and staff at Jesuit Universities to collaborate on joint project, research programs and curriculum development.

CURRICULAR SEQUENCE FOR WATER

SPRING 2015 COURSES

Faculty Facilitator: Prof. Jo Yarrington

The 2014-2015 academic year serves as the first of a two-year University campus-wide focus: WATER. The goal of offering a University focus is to highlight and promote interdisciplinary learning via a campus-wide conversation on a specific issue. The new focus will offer students from all academic disciplines the opportunity to delve into the theme while pursuing their studies and offer more integrative learning practices. This also involves the addition of a newly created Water Focus Curricular Sequence of classes for 2014-2015.

Water Focus Curricular Sequence for 2014-2015 (9 credit hours)

Fall 2014:

- 3 credit course selected from Water list (plus attendance at 3 Water events)

Spring 2015:

- 3 credit course selected from Water list (plus attendance at 3 Water events)
- 3 credit interdisciplinary “super” capstone course with discipline-based advising on a WATER-focused research project. Includes 4 seminar style meetings with a “faculty team.”

Course	Title	Instructor	CRN
BI 74	Biology of Food	Jen Klug	32372
Designed for non-science majors, the course will cover the biological processes needed to grow our food as well as the environmental consequences of producing and harvesting that food. The bulk of the course material will be description and discussion of model food organisms in the modern North American diet; including their origin, culture conditions, harvest techniques, pest management, and environmental issues.
BI 76/CH 76	Environmental Science	James Biardi	32372/32796
This course will include topics such as freshwater and saltwater systems, pollution, fracking, and other water-related topics.
CH 83	Survey of Chemistry	Sandra Bethray	32139
The chemical and physical properties of water are explored throughout the semester and, since the majority of common chemical and biochemical reactions occur in aqueous solution, the water molecule is front and center in the course. Students finish the class with a sound understanding and respect for water's importance on Planet Earth.
EC 120	Environmental and Resource Economics	Dina Franceschi	33286
This course will provide an introduction to the underlying theories and constructs that shape environmental and natural resource policy on the global level. We will develop an understanding of various concepts associated with renewable and non-renewable natural resources, pollution, environmental protection and regulation.
EN 12	Texts and Contexts II
Sections taught by the following instructors will have the WATER theme:
	Bohm	Ferrara	Hoover
	Dimyan	Hilts	Hosten
		Krauss	Madden
		Moliterno	Otfinoski
EN 214	Oceanic Shakespeare	Shannon Kelley	32868
This survey covers tragedies and romance, and many of these plays showcase the Mediterranean, pirates, mercantilism, sea voyages, or the Atlantic. We could also look at the sea as a model of selfhood more broadly.
HR 202	Scarce Element: Water as a Global Security Issue	Gita Rajan	31991
This course will focus upon theories of managing water as a scarce resource in a haphazardly globalizing reality together with theoretical essays in tandem with visual texts – both documentary and quasi-fictional.

The Water courses will be noted by “WATER” in the notes column in the Department Sections of the course booklet along with the timcodes.

WATER COURSES (continued)

Students will work individually with faculty in their disciplines, as well as attend four interdisciplinary seminars and three WATER focus events. There are no prerequisites. The grade will be based on the quality and depth of research, as conferred by the sponsoring faculty, as well as attendance and engagement in the seminars and events.
SA 11	Foundations: Structure, Space, Environment	Michael Donovan	31979
Through the development of three-dimensional forms, we will investigate the way water moves, permeates, and transforms.
SA 133	Photography I: Alternative Processes	Morgan Post	33931
Water will be used chemically and as a liquid to inspire the imagery of historic processes.
SA 134 A	Digital Photography: Imagine Water	Cheryl Edwards	32916
This course will focus on learning the basic techniques of digital photography while visually exploring the theme of water.
SA 139 A	Watercolor	Suzanne Chamlin	33922

STUDENTS: How to find your Faculty Advisor?

Students can look up the name of their Faculty Advisor through my.Fairfield.edu. Click on the Student Tab, and then click “My Academics,” click “Advising” under the Quick Links (left side of the screen). Then click “Advisor Name,” Select the current term (for example, 201501 is Spring 2015), and click “Submit.”

UNDERGRADUATE REGISTRATION PROCESS

- Students with a financial or Dean of Students hold will not be able to register.
- Students need to see their faculty advisor prior to registration to discuss course selection and to receive their PIN.
- Students are NOT excused from class to register. This includes cutting class or leaving class early.
- On-line registration will be by class year: one day for all students in each class to register for his/her courses. Classes will go on-line in alphabetical groupings every 45 minutes starting at 8:30 a.m. on their designated day. Spring Varsity Athletes will precede the alphabetical groupings.
- Students will register for major, minor, core and elective courses on their class registration day and are limited to a maximum of 20 credits.
- The on-line registration system will be active for each class until 11:59 pm. Then the student's on-line registration and PIN will be turned off until Tuesday, November 25th when add/drop begins.
- There will be a day in between each class registration for departments to review registrations and for students who missed their registration to register in person in the Registrar's Office.
- The University reserves the right to cancel courses for which there are insufficient registration or change time codes or professors as deemed necessary.
- Most courses will be open during the on-line registration period. Some departments (with courses that have specific populations) may incrementally increase the maximum number of spaces in some of their courses by class.

WAITLIST COURSES

The waitlist for courses will be turned on at the beginning of on-line registration, except for courses with maximums that are increased incrementally.

- When a space opens up in a class, the first student on the waitlist will be notified via his/her Fairfield student e-mail account, with instructions on how to register for the waitlisted class. They will have 24 hours from the time the email is sent to register for the class. If there is a conflict in his/her schedule, they will have to resolve that issue before registering for the waitlisted class. If they fail to register for the class by the deadline stated in the email, they will be taken off of the waitlist for that class.
- The use of the wait lists and the process of notifying students will run from Monday, December 1 through Friday, January 9. During this period, the Registrar's office will not honor write-ins for closed courses from faculty. The electronic waitlist will be the only mechanism for filling available openings in courses. After January 15, students can register for classes with open seats on a first come, first serve basis. During the Add/Drop period of January 20-26, the Registrar will accept write-ins from faculty for closed courses.

AUTOMATIC ROLLOVER COURSES

Automatic Rollover Courses are full-year courses that continue from the Fall semester to the Spring semester, typically with the same professor and the same time code. Everyone in the class is rolled. If you wish to change your rollover course, you may change it during your registration period, on a space available basis. Department Chairs can make changes in rollovers as necessary. Professors will announce specifics in class concerning whether their class is a rollover for Spring and what the rollover will be.

- BI 170-171 (course, lab, and PLG)
- CH 111L-112L (lab only)
- EC 11-12
- EN 11-12
- MA 145-146

NEW COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

BI 310 – Community Nutrition/BI 310L – Community Nutrition Lab

This course will introduce students to the fundamental applications of nutrition in a public health setting. Students will learn the theory behind health behavior change, community assessment, intervention planning, and program management. During the course, students will create a nutrition brochure, conduct a focus group, and produce a video Public Service Announcement. This course will give students a deeper understanding of how public health professionals identify nutritional risk in the community, and design programs to prevent the development of disease. Prerequisite: BI 170, 171, 172 OR BI 107/108. Sophomore enrollment by permission of the instructor. Four credits.

CO 102 – Introduction to Public Relations

This course introduces public relations as a field of study and as a practice. Through building critical thinking and considering ethical behaviors, this course will not only introduce you to the various types of public relations but will also help you to become a critical consumer of the public relations efforts taking place in the world around you while developing your own public relations tools and strategies. No prerequisites. Three credits.

CO 336 – Social Media

At the turn of the millennium, “social media” was still an unknown term; today, it is inescapably altering the landscape of our world and our lives in complex ways. This course examines social media by historicizing what is timeless about it and charting its new frontiers for humankind. Through a mix of scholarly, journalistic, and professional industry readings on social media, we will explore how culture, community, and identity are being reshaped alongside politics, business, and (what was once called) the “mass” communication industries. Prerequisite: CO 130. Three credits.

CO 340 – Conflict Communication

Conflict is a natural part of human life that has a variety of potential consequences. Although conflict can be disruptive and destructive, it can also be constructive and lead to improved adjustment and better decisions. The course is designed to offer you opportunities to enhance and improve your techniques and skills in managing conflict and moving them in a productive direction. The course examines the dynamics of human conflict across a variety of settings from personal relationships to the workplace, with special attention to the communication processes that escalate, manage, and mediate conflict. Prerequisite: CO 200. Three credits.

CO 343 – Ethics and Marketing Communication

This course will explore the dialectical tensions between the need for safe and effective products/services and the expectations for corporations to generate profits and dividends for their stakeholders. This course will use an applied ethics lens to examine the organizational, marketing, advertising, and corporate communication to clients, consumers, vendors, and investors. The content and ethical implications of marketing communication (from a variety of organizational perspectives: healthcare, economics, cultural, etc.) on expected and unintended outcomes will also be discussed and analyzed. Open to juniors and seniors only. Three credits.

EC 150 – Media Economics

This course analyzes the operation and consumption of the music, television, and entertainment industries within a microeconomic framework. Students will learn what forms of competition drive the production and distribution of media in the context of a changing technical environment. Theories of different media market settings will be illustrated and then concepts reinforced by real-world examples, including the changing operation of music production and distribution as the internet evolves, and the process of creating a movie from concept through final royalties. To explain these processes the topics of competition, pricing, industry structures, and regulatory environments will be explored. Three credits.

EN 163 – The Literature of Illness and Healing: Wounded Storytellers and Dedicated Healers

What is it like to suffer a stroke, contend with cancer, deal with depression, or live with a crippling disease? While biomedicine may clinically treat such conditions, it is to literature that we turn to gain a humanistic understanding of the emotional and spiritual impact of illness on wounded storytellers and on the dedicated doctors and nurses who care for them. Readings in various literary genres – memoir, essay, poetry, fiction, drama – and films with medical themes will also explore issues of diversity, noting how gender, race, ethnicity, religion, and sexual orientation affect the illness experience. Satisfies US Diversity requirement. Prerequisite: EN 11 & 12. Three credits.

GM 241 – Modern German Cinema

German filmmakers are known for their artistic expression and reaction to social and political trends that concern the country and its citizens. This course deals with major developments of German cinema throughout the twentieth century and will give students an overview of major movements, important directors, genres, and actors in the history of German film, as well as socio-political matters facing Weimar and Nazi Germany, post-war West and East German states, and unified Germany. Students will be introduced to the tools of film analysis, cinematic codes, and techniques such as narration, mise-en-scène, cinematography, sound, editing, and how these affect the viewer. Prerequisite: GM 211. Three credits.

HI 373 – History of North Africa Since 1700

This course examines the colonial struggles which have taken place in North Africa over the last two centuries and how political identities have developed despite authoritarian governments, political turmoil, and experiments with democratic institutions. North Africa is an immense territory lying on the north shore of the African continent and southern Europe, bordering the Mediterranean Sea and separated from greater Africa by the Saharan desert. Its geopolitical positioning has been essential to the role it has played in history, lying at the crossroads between the North and the South, the East and the West. Successive waves of colonization have created distinctive identities. In each case, history has been used to justify conquest. European colonialism has shaped the region in important ways through violence, institutional borrowings, cultural importations, and the imposition of foreign languages. Therefore, appealing to a regional North African identity is a political project. We will study the implications of this project for the writing of history. How do we understand the region and the singular histories of individual countries? Was there a pre-colonial identity? How do we recover it? As we explore some answers to these questions, we will study topics such as piracy and the Barbary pirates, the trans-Saharan slave trade, French, Spanish, and Italian colonialism, Jewish and Berber North African communities, colonial independence movements, national liberation, and decolonization. Prerequisites: HI 10 and one 200-level history course. Three credits.

PO 112 – 21st Century Power Politics

How does power operate in the 21st century? This course engages this question by focusing on how contemporary thinkers from the Global North and South assess the world in which we live. The course will take on issues of globalization, democratization, cosmopolitanism, poverty, race, gender, citizenship, and environmentalism. The work of key thinkers such as Karl Marx, Hannah Arendt, Franz Fanon, Julius Nyerere, Michel Foucault, Kwame Anthony Appiah, Judith Butler, and Wendy Brown will be examined. These theorists present a critical assessment of the nature and value of contemporary society's cherished ideals of social and economic progress, secularization, and scientific reason, and individual autonomy and liberty. This course explores and evaluates these controversial critiques of life that shape our understanding power in the 21st century. Three credits.

RS 260 – Religion in the United States

This course explores the story of religion in America from a multicultural, multi-faith perspective. Students will examine how different religious peoples and traditions have interacted across time and how these interactions and exchanges have both complicated and enriched the American religious landscape. Much attention will be paid to those voices often left out of the master narrative of American religion for reason of race, gender, ethnicity, class, or even peculiarity. The course is a survey; thus students will encounter a variety of topics from indigenous religious practices, revivalism, the early roots of traditions like Judaism and Islam, new religious movements, to secularization. Prerequisite: RS 10 or RS 101. Three credits.
