SERVICE LEARNING – FALL 2013 COURSES

Service Learning is a kind of experiential education that connects classroom learning with community service. In collaboration with community organizations, students learn about and apply tools of the academic discipline and specific course concepts in their service experiences. This combination enhances academic learning and civic awareness while also providing a meaningful service to and with the community. Course credit and grading are for the learning not for the service. The service activities for the course are similar to the readings, lectures, class discussions and other assignments – all are contexts for student learning. Courses will appear with the following notation in the right-hand column of the schedule of classes: SerL or SerL Option.

SerL = all students in the course are required to participate in service learning

SerL Option = students have a choice to participate in service learning as a final project and/or in lieu of another comparable project.

JESUIT UNIVERSITIES HUMANITARIAN ACTION NETWORK (JUHAN) FALL 2013 COURSES

The Jesuit Universities Humanitarian Action Network (JUHAN) was created to make sophistication in humanitarian response a hallmark of Jesuit undergraduate education. Grounded in the Jesuit tradition of developing “men and women for others,” JUHAN seeks to advance both undergraduate humanitarian education by bringing students into the professional field at an early stage in their education as well as by providing students who are not pursuing humanitarian action careers with the knowledge and skills needed to fulfill their responsibilities as engaged citizens.

JUHAN focuses on developing an educational program that places emphasis on the ethical dimensions of humanitarian action while leveraging the centuries-old Jesuit commitment to education globally to reach across institutional, national and international boundaries and provide students and faculty with a wide range of resources and opportunities. JUHAN also provides an opportunity for faculty, students and staff at Jesuit Universities to collaborate on joint project, research programs and curriculum development.

STUDENTS: Unsure of whom your Faculty Advisor is?

Students can look up the name of their Faculty Advisor through my.fairfield.edu. Click on the Student Tab, and then click “My Academics,” click “Advising” under Quick Links (let side of screen). Then click “Advisor Name.” Select the current term (for example, 2013 is Spring 2013), and click “Submit.”

UNDERGRADUATE REGISTRATION PROCESS

- Students with a financial or Dean of Students hold will not be able to register.
- Students need to see their faculty advisor prior to registration to discuss course selection and to receive their PIN.
- Students are NOT excused from class to register. This includes cutting class or leaving class early.
- On-line registration will be by class year: one day for all students in each class to register for his/her courses. Classes will go on-line in alphabetical groupings every 45 minutes starting at 8:30 a.m. on their designated day. Spring Varsity Athletes will precede the alphabetical groupings.
- Students will register for major, minor, core and elective courses on their class registration day and are limited to a maximum of 20 credits.
- The on-line registration system will be active for each class until 11:59 p.m. Then the student's on-line registration and PIN will be turned off until Tuesday, April 30th when add/drop begins.
- There will be a day in between each class registration for departments to review registrations and for students who missed their registration to register in person in the Registrar's Office.
- The University reserves the right to cancel courses for which there are insufficient registration or change time codes or professors as deemed necessary.
- Most courses will be open during the on-line registration period. Some departments (with courses that have specific populations) may incrementally increase the maximum number of spaces in some of their courses by class.

Waitlist Courses

The waitlist for courses will be turned on at the beginning of on-line registration, except for courses with maximums that are increased incrementally.

- When a space opens up in a class, the first student on the waitlist will be notified via his/her Fairfield student e-mail account, with instructions on how to register for the waitlisted class. They will have 24 hours from the time the email is sent to register for the class. If there is a conflict in his/her schedule, they will have to resolve that issue before registering for the waitlisted class. If they fail to register for the class by the deadline stated in the email, they will be taken off of the waitlist for that class.
- The use of the wait lists and the process of notifying students will run from Monday May 6th through Friday, August 30th. During this period, the Registrar's office will not honor write-ins for closed courses from faculty. The electronic waitlist will be the only mechanism for filling available openings in courses. After September 1st, students can register for classes with open seats on a first come, first serve basis. During the Add/Drop period of September 3-9, the Registrar will accept write-ins from faculty for closed courses.

NEW COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

AY 199/PH 265 – Philosophy and Economy Anthropology

This course examines “the economy” from philosophical and anthropological perspectives. We will investigate why people produce and exchange things, why they seek to amass things in some circumstances and give them away in others, and how our modern understandings of value, debt, and rationality emerged. (Prerequisite: PH 101) Three credits.

BI 383D – Special Topics: Evolution or BI 383D Special Topics: Evolutionary Biology

The broad objective of this course is to encourage students to integrate all the knowledge they have acquired as a biology major to critically interpret and analyze questions from an evolutionary perspective. We will read and discuss the current literature on major evolutionary topics, which have revolutionized the way in which we think about genomics, sex and reproduction, and our own human beginnings. We will also address important but controversial topics such as evolutionary medicine and evolutionary psychology. The course centers on student led discussions, presentations and literature critiques. Pre-requisites: BI 170, 171, and 172, CH 211–212 and one additional upper-level course in the Ecology and Evolution Block. (Prerequisites: BI 170, 171, and 172, one course from the Ecology Block and senior status or permission of the instructor). Three credits.

CL 325/HI 325 – Athenian Democracy and Empire

This history seminar provides an in-depth exploration of classical Athens at the height of its power in the fifth century BC. Its focus is on close reading of the primary sources describing the rise and fall of Athens in this period. It places particular emphasis on the parallel rise of Athenian democracy at home and the Athenian empire overseas. It places secondary emphasis on the nature of Athenian intellectual discourse in this period. A final research project will engage modern scholarly debates on the nature of fifth-century Athens. (Prerequisite: HI 200-level or permission of instructor) Three credits.

CO 329 – Contemporary Topics in Organizational Communication: Conflict

Conflict is a natural part of human life that has a variety of potential consequences. Although conflict can be disruptive and destructive, it can also be constructive and lead to improved adjustment and better decisions. The course is designed to offer you opportunities to enhance and improve your techniques and skills in managing conflict and moving them in a productive direction. The course examines the dynamics of human conflict across a variety of settings from personal relationships to the workplace, with special attention to the communication processes that escalate, manage, and mediate conflict. No prerequisites.

CO 338 – Media Audiences

Media Audiences has three related aims: (1) to introduce the theoretical and academic study of media audiences (2) to introduce students to qualitative field research methods and (3) to prepare students to engage with the current media industry through an examination of applied audience research. Recognizing that the study of media audiences is an important theoretical as well as practical endeavor, we will consider how audiences have been studied historically, in the academy, and within media industries. (Prerequisite: CO 130) Three credits.

Topics to include resume preparation, interviewing techniques, hands-on laboratories, lifelong learning, plant tours, etc. The course also provides an insight into the current and cutting-edge activities in engineering presented by in-house and outside speakers. All engineering students to enroll in this course and be available to attend. No credit. No prerequisites.

EN 130 – Literature by Women: Vision and Revision

This study of transatlantic, post-1800 literature by women will adopt Virginia Woolf’s notion that “books continue each other.” The course will be anchored in such “touchstone” texts as Jane Austen’s Pride and Prejudice, Charlotte Brontë’s Jane Eyre, and Edith Wharton’s The House of Mirth. Each touchstone work will be grouped with a number of subsequent literary texts responding to and/or revising the earlier work. Readings will reach across centuries and continents. Topics include the social constructions of race, sexuality, gender, class, and beauty, intertextuality, influence, and canon formation. (Prerequisites: EN 11 and 12) Three credits. (B)

EN 230A – Nineteenth-Century American Literature and Culture

This course surveys African American, Native American, and European American writers before the Civil War to the end of the century. Students analyze the ways literature influenced and was shaped by key movements, such as slavery and abolitionism, suffrage and Indian removal, labor and immigration, and spiritual life and science. The course explores issues of canonicity and cultural studies, drawing examples from film and popular culture to understand how we have defined ourselves as a nation. Writers include Poe, Emerson, Thoreau, Melville, Hawthorne, Douglass, Jacobs, Stowe, Dickinson, Whitman, Zitkala-Sa, Davis, Twain, Chopin, and Gilman. Prerequisite: EN 100-level course or equivalent. Three credits.

ENW 329B – Issues NW: Storytelling with Visualized Information

This semester, Issue in News Writing focuses on how to use interactive and visual representation of abstract data to tell news stories. Students will learn about approaches to access public data and use user-friendly tools to turn them into interesting visuals by applying various principles of information visualization. The course also teaches the basics of data analysis and state-of-the-art web technologies that enable readers to interact with data in compelling ways. (Prerequisite: ENW 220) Three credits.

FTM 107 – Television Genres

Basic to understanding television as an art form is the concept of genre. This course introduces students to the defining characteristics and the critical analysis of television genre. On a rotating basis, the course focuses on drama, serial, situation comedy, news and documentary, and reality television, examining distinct conception, writing, production, directing, editing and other conventions of each. Social and historical elements of the genre are also addressed. This course may be taken twice, is an elective history/analysis course for majors and minors in the FTM program, and fulfills a history VPA core requirement. Three credits.

FTM 109 – Sexual Orientation, Gender Identity, and the Movies

This course examines how American movies have portrayed gender and queer sexuality—lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender/transsexual, and questioning— to create a range of stereotypical and multi-dimensional characters. From “coded” sexual references in classical films, to timid New Hollywood-era films, to today’s thriving independent cinema, this representational genealogy includes condescending myth and bold truth-telling, works that both mirror and shape their cultural moment. This course satisfies an elective for majors and a history/analysis requirement for minors in the Film, Television & Media Arts Program, and a history requirement for VPA core. Three credits.

FTM 132 – Web Design

In this course students will understand and analyze current digital culture in order to develop the fundamental concepts and skills essential to designing professional websites. Students learn the theory of digital design, explore how information architecture and graphic design theories apply to the web medium, and understand how to use appropriate software to integrate audio, video, and animation into the web medium. Students will create a website that addresses a current social or environmental issue. This course satisfies an elective for FTM majors, a production requirement for FTM minors, and applied VPA core. (Prerequisite: FTM 10) Three credits.

HI313 – Godless: Atheism and Skeptical Thought in the West

The history of atheism –or whether atheism even has a history -- is difficult to establish. Scholars have used a narrow definition of the term atheism to suggest its origins in the 18th century, or a broad definition to trace its antecedents back to classical antiquity. This course considers atheism within the tradition of skepticism, and leaves open for classroom debate the question of whether the thinkers studied – from Epicurus to Ingersoll, Diderot to Dawkins – represent a coherent tradition or merely a collection of radical challenges, each tied to its own time and place. (Prerequisite: HI10) Three credits.

IS 310 – E-Business Applications

This course examines e-business applications such as knowledge management, enterprise resource planning (ERP), customer relationship management (CRM), and mobile applications in inter-organizational, national, and global business environments. Students explore new e-business applications, the economics of e-business, value chains and value networks, related legal and ethical issues, information privacy and security, disaster planning and recovery, and the impact of emerging e-business and mobile applications. The course includes a brief introduction to technical architecture, technology solutions, and financing required for effective e-business applications. Students investigate emerging opportunities, challenges, and trends through interactive team exercises, case studies, and individual research projects and presentations. (Prerequisite: IS 100) Three credits.

MA 120 – Applied Calculus II

Topics in this course include: applications of the derivative, including implicit differentiation, related rates and linear approximation; integration of algebraic, transcendental and trigonometric functions; differentiation of trigonometric functions; techniques of integration; applications of the definite integral; infinite series. A graphing calculator and Wolfram Alpha are among the technologies that may be used. MA 120 is not a prerequisite for MA 171. Students who receive credit for any one of MA 120, MA 146 or MA 172 may not receive credit for either of the other two. (Prerequisite: MA 119 or equivalent) Three credits.

ME 355 – Biomechanics

This course introduces the fundamentals of biomechanics in a simplified manner to address students from a wide variety of disciplines. In this course, the mechanics of the human musculoskeletal system will be studied through the application of engineering methods. The course is intended to provide background in biomechanics for students interested in the biomedical and robotics field. The course covers biomechanics of bipedal gait, and the energetics of walking (e.g. how humans maintain efficiency by exchanging kinetic and potential energy during gait), passive dynamic walkers with biomimetic designs to achieve energy efficiency), and bipedal robots demonstrating where modern technology is heading. (Prerequisite: ME 201 or equivalent) Three credits.

PO 190 Special Topics: Border Politics

This course examines contemporary debates on border politics through theories of state formation, identity politics, intersectionality, postcolonialism, political geography, and poststructuralism. Students investigate the social construction of borders along with state strategies of maintaining, policing, securitizing, and militarizing the border against the “licit” and “illicit” global movement of people and goods. The course covers border politics historically and in light of challenges such as globalization and state sovereignty, immigration, the “war on terror,” and natural resources and environmental sustainability. Students will draw from these theories and contexts to explore case studies of border politics in the global north and south. (Prerequisite: six hours of politics credits or permission of instructor) Three credits.

RS 240 – The Medieval Church

This course surveys the development of Christianity in medieval Western Europe through the lens of the Western/Latin Church. It presents a broad history of the social, political and religious aspects of the Church as found in a variety of primary sources: mystical and theological writings, hagiographical literature and rules for monastic communities, and official Church documents. Through these sources students are introduced to the critical analysis of primary texts (dating from c. 300-1500) by giving proper attention to the social and cultural context in which they were written. Topics discussed in this course include: monasticism, the rise of papal power, the First Crusade, and the development of cathedrals and universities. (Prerequisite: RS 10 or RS 101) Three credits.

RS 276 – Islamic Theology

This course is a survey of major tenets of Muslim belief, points of difference, and schools of theological thought. We will explore important points of faith and investigate the debates that have emerged over the course of Islamic history. Special attention will be paid to the areas of doctrinal formulation, scholastic theology and mystical thought. Our primary readings will consist of both primary sources in translation and current secondary literature. (Prerequisite: RS 10 or RS 101) Three credits.

SW 382C – Special Topics: Android Mobile Application

This course teaches students how to build mobile apps on Android platform using Eclipse and the Android SDK. It explores the principles and challenges in designing and developing applications for the mobile devices through the coverage of the underlying theory coupled with hands-on exercise. Key concepts will be introduced from user interface design and limitations, threading and background processing, storage and data persistence, connectivity and networking, multimedia handling, and the new trends in the mobile technology. Additional topics include application deployment and availability on the app store and market, application security, efficient power management, and mobile device security. (Pre-requisite: SW 131 or permission of the instructor) Three credits.
