SERVICE LEARNING – SPRING 2014 COURSES

Service Learning is a kind of experiential education that connects classroom learning with community service. In collaboration with community organizations, students learn about and apply tools of the academic discipline and specific course concepts in their service experiences. This combination enhances academic learning and civic awareness while also providing a meaningful service to and with the community. Course credit and grading are for the learning not for the service. The service activities for the course are similar to the readings, lectures, class discussions and other assignments – all are contexts for student learning. Courses will appear with the following notation in the right-hand column of the schedule of classes: SerL or SerL Option.

SerL = all students in the course are required to participate in service learning

SerL Option = students have a choice to participate in service learning as a final project and/or in lieu of another comparable project.

JESUIT UNIVERSITIES HUMANITARIAN ACTION NETWORK (JUHAN) SPRING 2014 COURSES

The Jesuit Universities Humanitarian Action Network (JUHAN) was created to make sophistication in humanitarian response a hallmark of Jesuit undergraduate education. Grounded in the Jesuit tradition of developing “men and women for others,” JUHAN seeks to advance both undergraduate humanitarian education by bringing students into the professional field at an early stage in their education as well as by providing students who are not pursuing humanitarian action careers with the knowledge and skills needed to fulfill their responsibilities as engaged citizens.

JUHAN focuses on developing an educational program that places emphasis on the ethical dimensions of humanitarian action while leveraging the centuries-old Jesuit commitment to education globally to reach across institutional, national and international boundaries and provide students and faculty with a wide range of resources and opportunities. JUHAN also provides an opportunity for faculty, students and staff at Jesuit Universities to collaborate on joint project, research programs and curriculum development.

STUDENTS: Unsure of whom your Faculty Advisor is?

Students can look up the name of their Faculty Advisor through my.fairfield.edu. Click on the Student Tab, and then click “My Academics,” click “Advising” under Quick Links (let side of screen). Then click “Advisor Name.” Select the current term (for example, 201401 is Spring 2014), and click “Submit.”

UNDERGRADUATE REGISTRATION PROCESS

- Students with a financial or Dean of Students hold will not be able to register.
- Students need to see their faculty advisor prior to registration to discuss course selection and to receive their PIN.
- Students are NOT excused from class to register. This includes cutting class or leaving class early.
- On-line registration will be by class year: one day for all students in each class to register for his/her courses. Classes will go on-line in alphabetical groupings every 45 minutes starting at 8:30 a.m. on their designated day. Spring Varsity Athletes will precede the alphabetical groupings.
- Students will register for major, minor, core and elective courses on their class registration day and are limited to a maximum of 20 credits.
- The on-line registration system will be active for each class until 11:59 p.m. Then the student's on-line registration and PIN will be turned off until Tuesday, November 26 when add/drop begins.
- There will be a day in between each class registration for departments to review registrations and for students who missed their registration to register in person in the Registrar's Office.
- The University reserves the right to cancel courses for which there are insufficient registration or change time codes or professors as deemed necessary.
- Most courses will be open during the on-line registration period. Some departments (with courses that have specific populations) may incrementally increase the maximum number of spaces in some of their courses by class.

Waitlist Courses

The waitlist for courses will be turned on at the beginning of on-line registration, except for courses with maximums that are increased incrementally.

- When a space opens up in a class, the first student on the waitlist will be notified via his/her Fairfield student e-mail account, with instructions on how to register for the waitlisted class. They will have 24 hours from the time the email is sent to register for the class. If there is a conflict in his/her schedule, they will have to resolve that issue before registering for the waitlisted class. If they fail to register for the class by the deadline stated in the email, they will be taken off of the waitlist for that class.
- The use of the waitlists and the process of notifying students will run from Monday, December 2 through Friday, January 10. During this period, the Registrar's office will not honor write-ins for closed courses from faculty. The electronic waitlist will be the only mechanism for filling available openings in courses. Starting January 16, students can register for classes with open seats on a first come, first serve basis. During the Add/Drop period of January 16 – January 22, the Registrar will accept write-ins from faculty for closed courses.

Automatic Rollover Courses

Automatic Rollover Courses are full-year courses that continue from the Fall semester to the Spring semester typically with the same professor and the same time code. Everyone in the class is rolled. If you wish to change your rollover course, you may change it during your registration period on a space available basis. Department Chairs can make changes in rollovers as is necessary. Professors will announce in class specifics concerning whether their class is a rollover for Spring and what the rollover will be.

Note: If you have a financial or Dean of Student's hold at the time rollovers are processed, you will not be rolled over into the next class in the sequence.

The following courses are automatic rollovers:

- 1) BI 107-108 (course only)

NEW COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

CO 324 – Crisis Communication

This course discusses key concepts, principles, and best practices of crisis communication. Intersections with other areas of the communication field will also be addressed, including public relations and organizational and risk communication. Students will understand the role strategic communication, power, stakeholders, and organizational culture play during a crisis. This course analyzes case studies of previous crises and will ask students to provide their own plans and critical assessments of recent crises. (Prerequisite: Junior or Senior status) Three credits.

CO 332 – Children as Media Consumers

This course aims to provide a forum for advanced Communication students to explore the patterns of children’s media consumption, focusing primarily on children’s use of the so-called “screen media” (television, video games, and the Internet), and to investigate the multi-faceted consequences—both positive and negative, social and individual—of children’s media consumption. Students will draw upon contemporary theories of communication to assess the content of children’s media and its “effects” on children as a particular segment of the audience. Students will develop an informed understanding of children as media consumers, advocating for the production of “quality” content in children’s media. (Prerequisite: CO 130) Three credits.

CO 333 – News Media and Democracy

The news media play an essential role in changing America and the world – by bridging theory with practice, this course aims to equip students to become critical news consumers with a skilled understanding of how that works and politically literate about the big issues of our time. Through classic scholarly reflections as well as contemporary punditry, we will tackle the news media “critically” across three dimensions: learning about its indispensable function in mediating politics and democracy throughout history and today; studying and practicing the craft of opining writing and social advocacy; and evaluating and critiquing the performance of the press in these matters. (Prerequisite: CO 130) Three credits.

EN 100B – Special Topics: Modern Catholic Authors

This course surveys some significant Catholic authors from the pre-modern through the post-modern periods, generally known as the “modern” era, when new literary techniques and bold subject matter emerged as important expressions in literature. Students will read Catholic authors for their contributions to the often radical evolution of literary genres. The survey begins with the poetry of Gerard Manley Hopkins and proceeds through selected fiction of James Joyce, Flannery O’Connor, J.R.R. Tolkien, and Cormac McCarthy – all pioneers in their development of Catholic thought, including alternative and critical views of the teachings and practices of the Church. (Prerequisites: EN 11 and EN 12, or equivalent) Three credits.

EN 134 – 20th Century Jewish American Literature

Storytelling is central to Jewish identity and search for meaning, from the Old Testament to graphic novels and comic books about Jewish life and culture after the Holocaust. Twentieth-century American Jewish writing strongly influenced TV, film, Broadway, social justice movements and more, reaching out to the widest range of American audiences. This course surveys American Jewish literature’s use of Yiddish and Jewish ethnic and historical sources to produce lasting and relevant American prose, drama, poetry, and film. (Prerequisite: EN 12 or equivalent and sophomore-level status) Three credits.

EN 231 – Early American Literature

A study of the origins of literature of the Americas with an emphasis on the Puritans and early Republic through 1830. We begin with the oral history of Native Americans and the literature of colonization and exploration. We also explore the rich tradition of spiritual autobiography, poetry, narrative history, and sermons among the Puritans. Turning to the eighteenth-century, we examine captivity narratives and democratic writing of the Revolutionary period, with an emphasis on the impact of the slave trade, colonization, Independence, and contemporary issues of the post-colonial period. (Prerequisite: EN 100-level course or equivalent) Three credits.

EN 235 – Studies in American Literature: Edith Wharton and Her Circle

A study of fiction by American realist Edith Wharton in the context of her peers, including writers she read and those she inspired. While Wharton serves as a focal point, the course also examines the works and ideas of such influential figures as Balzac, Flaubert, Maupassant, Chekhov, James, Crane, Dreiser, and Freeman, as well as adaptations of Whartonian themes by such novelists as Larsen, Bushnell, von Ziegesar and Tóibín. Topics include the social construction of “whiteness,” the art of social climbing, turn-of-the-century gender crises involving masculinity and the New Woman, and the social and cultural transformations wrought by the modern city. (Prerequisite: 100-level English literature class, or permission of instructor) Three credits.

ENW 399 – Advanced Portfolio Workshop

English 399 is a capstone course for Creative Writing concentrators who want to work on longer creative projects (novel, memoir, collection of short stories, essays, or poems; or some combination thereof). The course will be run as a workshop class, with students submitting creative work in one (or more) of the three genres, to be read and critiqued by the faculty member and students. Students can expect to submit a minimum of 50 pages of prose or 30 pages of poetry or some equivalent of the two. Students will also be required give a final public reading of their work during the semester. (Prerequisites: ENW 302, ENW 305, or ENW 306) Three credits.

FTM 106G – Film Genres (H): Disaster and Apocalyptic Films

This section of Film Genres will study the history of representing disasters in commercial and independent American movies. We will begin with the silent feature The Wind, then several films from 1930-50, such as King Kong and The Flesh and the Devil, and on to the 1970s when the genre dominated at the box office and gave panicked voice to the wider culture's "crisis in confidence." Jaws, Towering Inferno, The Poseidon Adventure and Earthquake also helped usher in technological and industrial changes that change the look feel and business of commercial films. The course will end with a look at how the 20th century disaster film bled into 21st century apocalyptic anxieties and fantasies that led to one movie news headline to declare, "These Days The End Is Always Near," including the post-apocalyptic Hunger Games. This course satisfies an elective for FTM majors, a history/analysis requirement for minors, and a history requirement for VPA core. Three credits; may be taken twice. (Previously FM 200 – Film Genres.) Three credits.

FTM 107C – Television Genres: Sitcoms (H)

This section of Television Genres will focus on television genre theory applied to the history of American television comedy. As we learn the foundational generic conventions of situation comedy, we will also explore comic subgenres associated with what we might call the "postmodern turn" in comic television programming. These include, among others, transgressive comedy, squirm comedy, and sex-coms. Self-referential, genre-bending, visually and aurally dense, many of today's television comedies highlight post-modern aesthetics that frequently put traditional storytelling techniques through the blender and splatter their effects in unconventional ways. We will look at television programming from a range of perspectives, including television comedy as art form, cultural commodity, political critique, and social commentary. We will consider the aesthetic and thematic developments of contemporary television comedies especially in comparison to traditional historical television comedies. Through lectures, readings, screenings, discussions, student presentations, and written reflections, students will learn about the relationship between structural and generic changes, comedic effect, and narrative strategy with the primary purpose of understanding the history of television comedy, its subgenres, and the cultural moment of 'now.' This course may be taken twice, is an elective history/analysis course for majors and minors in the FTM program, and fulfills a history VPA core requirement. No prerequisites. (FTM majors and minors – fulfills requirement for history/analysis course) Three credits.

HI 248 – Autobiography in Early America: Writing the Self

This multi-disciplinary course will introduce the students to the various aspects of mechatronics systems; from concept generation phase to implementation. An introduction to sensors, actuators, signal conditioning, data acquisition, and Lab View programming will be presented through lectures and lab sessions. At the end of the semester, the students will define specifications for a mechatronics system, lay out alternative solutions, select the optimal design using a design matrix, and execute implementation. Prerequisites: EE213 or equivalent.

MC305 – Design of Mechatronics Systems

This course examines human computer interaction and evaluates various user interfaces, especially as they apply to the health care environment. Topics include data visualization, evidence-based systems and tools (such as PubMed, UpToDate), and data warehouse design with an emphasis on healthcare. (Prerequisite: SW 232 or instructor's permission) Three credits.

PH 230 – Philosophy of Self and Subjectivity

In 446 BCE the Greek poet Pindar, crafted this line: "What is someone? What is someone not? A person is the dream of a shadow." What does it mean to be a self or a subject? While most people would claim to know themselves, it is not always entirely clear what a 'self' is. This course examines the development and parameters of the self and subjectivity through the lens of major philosophical figures. First using a historical approach, then applying methods from contemporary schools of thought, the course investigates the self as both an anchor of security and source of complexity. (Prerequisite: PH 101) Three credits.

PY 321 – The Social Psychology of Human Potential

This seminar challenges conventional wisdom that psychological processes propel people toward animosity, violence, and suffering and away from compassion, cooperation, and flourishing. As such, the course focuses as much on humans' positive potentialities as on our negative potentialities, and will devote as much attention to psychological approaches to building healthy communities/individuals as to approaches aimed at understanding social strife and psychological suffering. We will take a broad approach, exploring current research in social, evolutionary, and developmental psychology as well as related work in biology, philosophy, and economics. Open to senior and junior psychology majors with permission of instructor. Three credits.

RS 299 – Special Topics: Catholic Intellectual Tradition

The purpose of this course is to bring students to an understanding of the characteristically Catholic ways of engaging the world intellectually. Students will be led to examine and understand ideas of symbol, analogy and sacrament, and will come to an appreciation of central Catholic motifs such as theology's "faith seeking understanding," the synthesis of faith and reason, and the peculiarly Catholic expression of Christian humanism. They will study the origins of Catholicism's distinctive mode of thinking as expressed in the work of Catholic philosophers and intellectuals, and they will see the vision concretized in a number of creative works. They will study some of the challenges to the integrity of the tradition from feminist and non-Western critiques, and they will explore some of the ways in which the tradition, modified by these critiques, offers constructive ways of engaging contemporary social problems. (Prerequisite: RS 101) Three credits.

SW 381 – Human Computer Interface

This course examines human computer interaction and evaluates various user interfaces, especially as they apply to the health care environment. Topics include data visualization, evidence-based systems and tools (such as PubMed, UpToDate), and data warehouse design with an emphasis on healthcare. (Prerequisite: SW 232 or instructor's permission) Three credits.

TA 300A – Special Topics: Theatre Administration and Management

When asked about a theatre event, we usually think of actors performing for an audience. Yet, there is a multitude of essential factors behind the production. On the management side, there is the lynchpin of the production: the stage manager, making sure that the show runs smoothly. On the administration side, there are other issues: What is the overriding purpose of the theatre company? Where did the money come from? Who controls the theatre space? How does the audience learn about the production? This course introduces the numerous managerial and administrative matters that are necessary for theatre production. No prerequisites. Three credits.
